KING OF BODY-SNATCHERS

Paralysis Seizes Percy Brown, a Noted Resurrectionist.

DYING IN "RYDER'S CASTLE"

His Record for Boldness in Ais Uncanny "Profession" Not Surpassed-Gruesome Incidents in His Career-Connected with the Russian Nobility.

One of Washington's most noted criminal characters was stricken with paralysis yesterday, and is said to be in a dving condition in his room in "Ryder's Castle," the old tumbledown tenement No. 429 New Jersey avenue northwest, next to the Sixth precinct station-

Percy Brown, aged, sin-hardened, and notorious, and who proudly wears the soubriquet of "King of the body-smatchers," is the character mentioned. For several years past he has resided with his sister, Mand Brown, and her husband in the old rookery. Percy has not been able of late owing to his feeble condition to follow his uneanny profession of resurrectionist, but his past record will vie with that of any other body-anatcher in the world, not excepting that of the desperate Jansen, whose bold exploits in this city are so well known.

In years gone by Percy, Maud and their onfederates made big money unearthing odies from neighboring gravewards and selling them to medical colleges here and sele-ing them to medical colleges here and else-where. His fondness for drink, however, al-ways kept his cash account low, and now as the setting sun of his flip spent life is disap-pearing, the old fellow finds himself penniless

Percy Brown was born in Russia, where he Percy Brown was born in Russia, where no claims to be connected with the hobility of the Char's domains. He is about sixty-five years of age and could always easily be distinguished by his long, reddish beard, heavy flowing eyebrows, and piercing, bead-like eyes. He was a typical resurrectionist in apyes. He was a typical resurrectionist in ap-corance and was teared by the unintelligent ass of negroes, who declared he was a "slay octor" and captured live subjects for the dis-

"It was in 1873, He was captured at the Bultimore and Ohio depot by Officers Atchison and Dubols. Percy had four stiffs in a long box, and wanted to ship them to a Baltimore college, where he was to receive $15 for each body. The box accidentally broke open and the corpses rolled out on to the depot platform, creating great excitement. Eumors were circulated that four murdered men had been found, and a cowd of several thousands of people congregated about the old Seventh precinct station-house, at the corner of Pirst and F streets northwest, where we had the candwers laid out in a ghastly line in the back yard.

"At that time there was no law which spe-cifically punished body snatching, and we had to arraign prisoners charged with that of-fense under the vagrancy not. We captured Percy and Maud Brown and another as-sistant in an old shanty near the brick yards, on South Capitol street. The house was known as the headquarters of the body snatching craft in Washington, and the loca-tion was an admirable one for the purpose. There were but few houses in the vicinity and

There were but lew houses in the vicinity and the surroundings were gloomy and isolated.

"The three prisoners were tried in the police court as vagrants by Judge Snell, it being the first case of the kind ever tried in a District court. They were all convicted and sent down for three months. The police also captured all of Fercy's paraphernalia, comprising grave hooks, bags, crowbars, spades, WASHINGTON'S GRAVE NOT SAFE. "Several years later Percy's second head-quarters, in Northeast Washington, were raided by the police, who discovered beneath the house a damp cavern, wherein the bodies were kept before shipment. When Brown was on trial before Judge Snell-he was asked if he robbed graves as a means of livelihood. "Yes," he answered, proudly, "and I would rob the grave of George Washington if I could get the chance." On another occasion Percy got drunk while taking a cadaver to the old dissecting rooms which were formerly on the top floor of the building at the northeast corner of Tenth and E streets northwest. Instead of placing the body in the hallway leading to the dissecting rooms, he got it into the adjoining one, which opened into a private residence. Then he staggered off lown the street with the consciousness, no doubt, of duty well done. Offi-cer Slattery, who was on that beat, came along a short while later, and while trying the door it opened and the cornse pliched for-ward out of the hallway and fell at the policeman's feet. This event also caused much excliement, and reports of a horrible murder were rife that night and the next day." Numerous other ghastly incidents could be related of the man who has followed for many years the business of resurrectionist, but who is now himself about to investigate more fully than ever before the interior of the

PULLING FOR THE PIANO.

Public School Pupils Putting in Some Hard

There is music in the air around Washington's public school buildings just now, for the pupils are beginning to work like beavers for the beautiful Times piano. It is a prize well striving for, and the boys and girls appreciate this fact. Each one is working with a dual purpose—to win the piano and thereby to have his or her school building declared the most popular in the city. Keep it up, children! The piano speaks for itself.

Commissioners Will Strictly Enforce the Regulations for Maintenance of Gates and Guards at Street Crossings. The District Commissioners had under con sideration yesterday the suggestions made by Inspector Beggs in his recent report as to the proper means to secure the public against the liability to accidents at railroad crossings in the southwest. In all cases where there is insufficient servce the regulations will be strictly enforced. Where the night traffic and travel require it gates that are now left without a gateman at 8 o'clock p. m. will be placed on the list requiring a night man, and when necessary an additional gateman will be ordered where there is now but one maintained.

An order upon the subject, based upon the inspector's report, was issued yesterday. If this does not cover the field, as discovered after further deliberation, a supplemental order will be recombeted. der will be promulgated.
The order is as follows:
"That the Baltimore and Potomae Railroad Company be notified that the gates at Mary-

Company be notified that the gates at many-land avenue and Sixth street northwest are not suitable for all the crossings at that loca-tion, since the gates do not cover the north sidewalk of Maryland ayenue at the west side of Sixth street, neither the north readway of Maryland avenue, and that the same company be notified that they are required to operate the gates at Twelfth and Thirteenth streets southwest during the night as well as during the day.

"That the Southern Railway Company be notified that under the District police regula-tions they are required to erect a suitable gate or guard, and maintain it, at Thirteenth street southwest,

"That the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad Company be notified that they are required under the police regulations to erect a fence along their tracks on Maryland avenue, be-tween Sixth and Seventh streets, and else-where in the District where the grade of the railroad track is approximately even with the adjacent surface."

The Commissioners will ask authority of Congress, in connection with the estimates for next year's appropriations, to have the work required on all the county roads to be hereafter done by hired laborers and by the day. The law now is that such work shall be done by contract altogether, but the Commis-sioners want permission to exercise their pref-erence in the matter, and where the improve-ments can be advantageously made by em-ploying iator direct, they will so order. This will, it is believed, be an advantage to loca laboring men, as all employment under that arrangement will naturally be given to District people.
